Odie were out hunting rabbits in the woods eight or ten miles from Attleboro, Mass. They started a rabbit, which ran into a pile of brush. Thomas jumped on to the brush to try and drive out the rabbit, if it was there. As he jumped on the pile something round and white rolled out, which they soon found was a human skull. They then turned over the brush, and the complete skeleton of a woman was found, with a braid of dark hair and some portion of clothing clinging to the bleached bones. The skull showed the marks of a bullet made by a 32caliber revolver. The ball had gone completely through the skull, entering at the right temple and emerging about an inch above the left temple. That it was not suicide was evi-dent from the fact that no revolver was gust, 1884, John J. McMahon, the messenger of found. The mystery regarding this skeleton seemed to be unfathomable. Paying Grant and Ward's Debts.

Some time before the failure of the firm of Grant & Ward, Mrs. Virginia Corbin, Gen. struggle. Grant's sister, was invited to place money in the firm for investment. She called at the firm's office and was introduced to Ferdinand Ward. She took a dislike to him, and it is said told Col. Fred Grant that she believed Ward was untrustworthy. A few days later Mrs. Corbin intrusted Col. Grant with $25,900, which he invested with the firm without her knowledge. When the crash came Gen. Grant, in looking over the accounts, discovered that the firm owed Mrs. Corbin this amount. As he was preparing for the end he charged his family to pay all the debts caused by his unfortunate connection with Ward. A day or two ago Mrs. Grant sent a certified check for $25,000 to Mrs. Corbin in payment of the investment.

One Man Holds a Host at Bay. Henry A. Steadman, a farmer living near Oakland, Neb., quarreled with one of his men, Ed. Johnson, and was killed. Johnson jumped on a horse and fled. An organized mounted posse started in pursuit. Johnson was overtaken 12 miles from the scene of the shooting. He ran into a barn on the farm of Charles Johnson and strongly intrenched himself, the chinks between the boards affording excellent loop-holes for the use of his weapons, a rifle and a revolver. The barn was surrounded, and a fusillade of shots was begun. The murderer returned almost shot for shot. He was struck in the leg, but continued to fire and keep his pursuers at bay. Reinforcements were sent from Oakland by the Sheriff, with instructions to bring Johnson in dead or alive. Charles Johnson, the farmer, was killed and several others wounded. For 36 hours the desperado held out, and finally it was decided to fire the barn and force him either to surrender or suffer cremation. Acquitted of Murder. Meinhardt Heundling, the young German who shot Harrison Taskell in the Criminal Court room at Indianapolis, Ind., last Fall, was acquitted of the charge of murder last week, after an absence of 15 minutes by the jury. Taskell was a negro who had assaulted the prisoner's sister. In his instructions to the jury the Judge said: "The commonly-received doctrine is that an assault or an assault and battery are the only legal provocations, but the current history of crime in this country is that, with rare exceptions. juries will not convict a man of murder for killing another man who has in any form violated the virtue and chastity of a female who stands in the near relation of a wife, daughter or sister to the slayer. This results from a higher degree of civilization and a more elevated plane of common sense, that recognizes and more heats the blood than such an offense against a near female relative." The announcement of the jury's verdict was received with cheers by the crowd in the court-room.

SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.

More Disclosures of the Way in Which They are Treated in the Schools of Pennsylvania.

The Soldiers' Orphans' School at Chester Springs was visited by Gov. Pattison recently. This school was in little better condition than the others which had been examined, and all the children showed evidence of great neglect. The Governor and the Attorney-General, however, were grossly insulted by the children, who declared in chorus that they were well cared for and didn't want any interference. On the following day the school at McAllisterville was inspected. Here the buildings were found to be entirely inadequate for the proper accommodation of the pupils, and the sanitary arrangements were very defective. The children were found to be much better fed than at Mt. Joy, but some of the edibles were condemned even by the cook, who, being examined by Attorney-General Cassidy, said the butter was very bad, and the flour was also bad. The sleeping rooms of the larger boys are susceptible of much improvement, and the dormitory, in which 35 little boys slept in 17 beds, is utterly unfit, on account of its crowded condition, for the purpose for which it is being used. The ceiling is only about five and a half feet high on the average, about 12 feet long and 12 feet wide. The bedding was generally clean, except in this room. The external appearance was tidy enough, but the overturning of the pillows and the examination of the sheets revealed much filth. A number of beds accommodated three girls each. Mr. Smiley, the male attendant, was examined at length. He said that no tooth brushes had been issued to the boys and no combs to boys who had clipped hair. The bathing arrangements were pronounced poor, but the lavatory was in good condition. The water supply and drainage furnished cause for complaint, and some of the bed-rooms were crowded. Otherwise there was little to complain and the school was in excellent condition when compared with Mt. Joy and Chester Springs. The salaries of teachers and attendants aggregated $6,000, and the principal receives as much as all the Mt. Joy teachers combined. The Grand Army has been untiring in its efforts to unearth the alleged frauds, and the committee chosen for that purpose in their report, say: Our inquiries, so far, satisfy us that the enforcement of the laws establishing and maintaining the Soldiers' Orphans' Schools has been neglected by those charged with their maintenance, and it is not surprising that, under these circumstances, those who managed the schools should do so with an eye only to the possible profits to be derived therefrom, and not with a desire to properly care for, mainthe truth that nothing so justly exasperates | tain, and educate, at the expense of the State, the children of our dead or disabled comrades. The remedy for the present deplorable and disgraceful condition of affairs, as developed by the investigations of the Governor and Attorney-General, is entirely within the control of the Superintendent of the Soldiers' Orphans' Schools and the Governor of the Commonwealth, who may at any time annul any or all the contracts if any of the conditions of such contracts have not been fulfilled by any con-> approval of all good citizens. We suggest that the Auditor-General decline to approve any warrants for the payment of bills in connection with these schools until proper contracts have been executed and the laws otherwise fully complied with, and in this suggestion it is our intention to include the regulations governing the amount and quality of the clothing to be issued; the quantity, quality, and preparation of the food for the children; the extent of and the furnishing of the lavatory, the sleeping and other necessary accommodations; the number and qualifications of teachers and instructors employed, and for the proper enforcement of all this intelligent, systematic, and frequent inspections of all the schools in all their arrangements by the officials paid and employed by the State.
